Drought: Period of excessive dryness long enough to affect agriculture, habitats, or people, which often develop slowly over months or years.